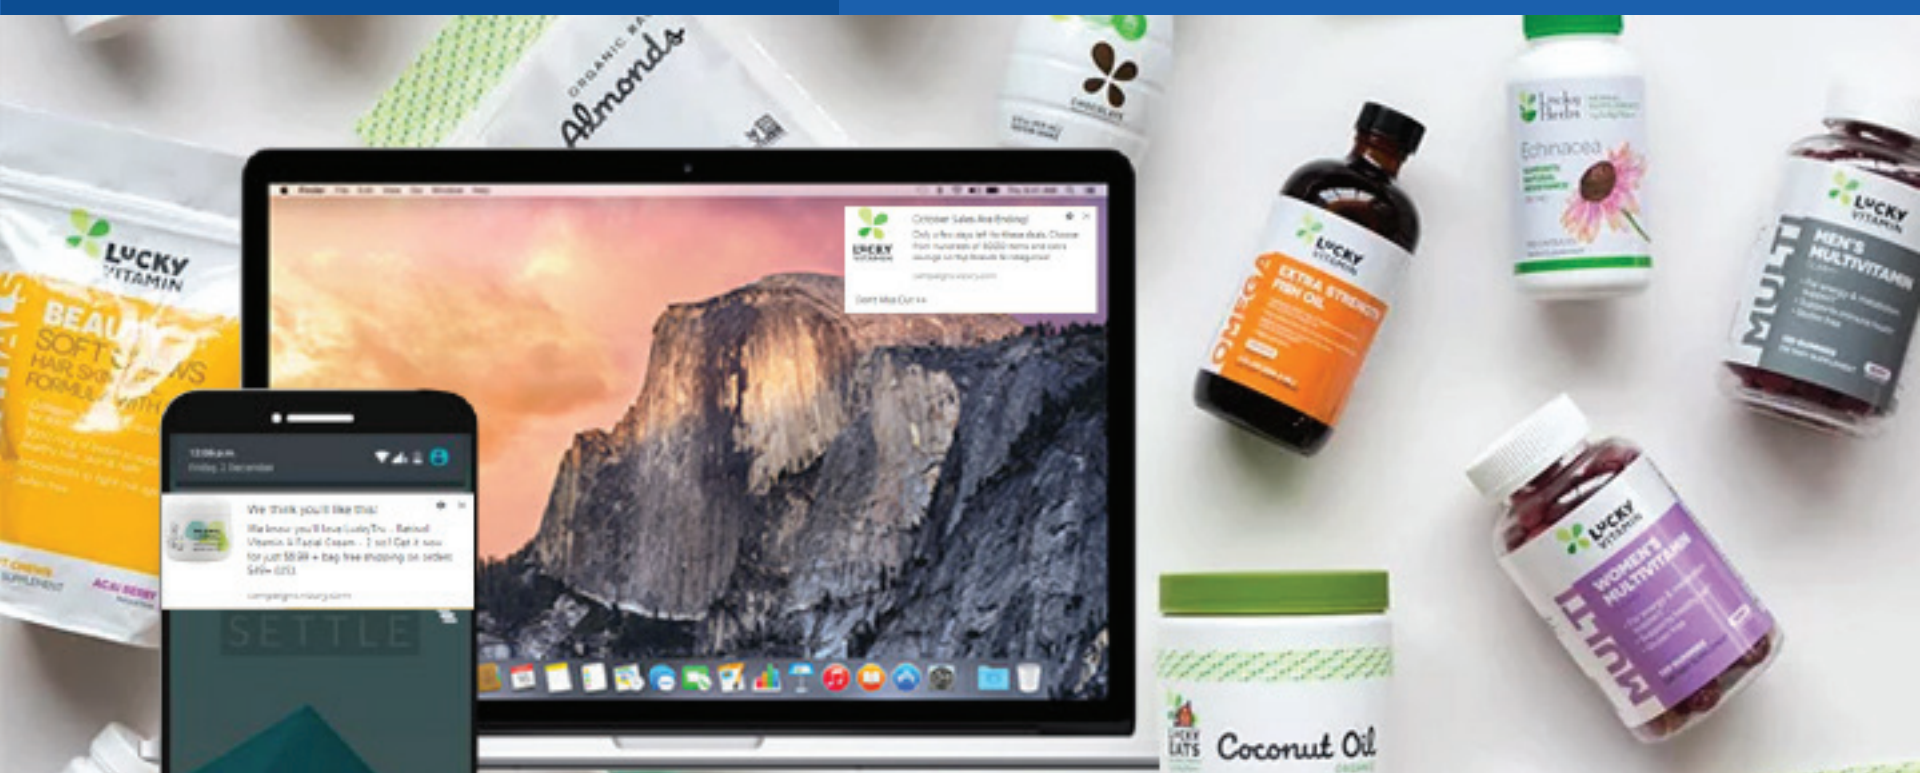
CASE STUDY | LUCKY VITAMIN

VIZURY powered by affle



LuckyVitamin adopts Vizury's Personalized Browser Pushes for surf & cart abandonment users

Challenge

- Highly competitive industry with strong players across a growing market.
- Identifying and reaching active and inactive users.

Objective

LuckyVitamin wanted to reach out to users who drop off from product and cart pages with customized messaging. Additionally, it wanted to inform users whenever prices of their carted or viewed products reduced, upcoming offers and deals, etc.

Solution

LuckyVitamin used Vizury's dynamic feed-based Browser Push Notifications:

- to send customized 1:1 notifications
- to trigger drop-offs on product and cart pages
- to trigger price drop-alerts on user's cart and viewed products

Results

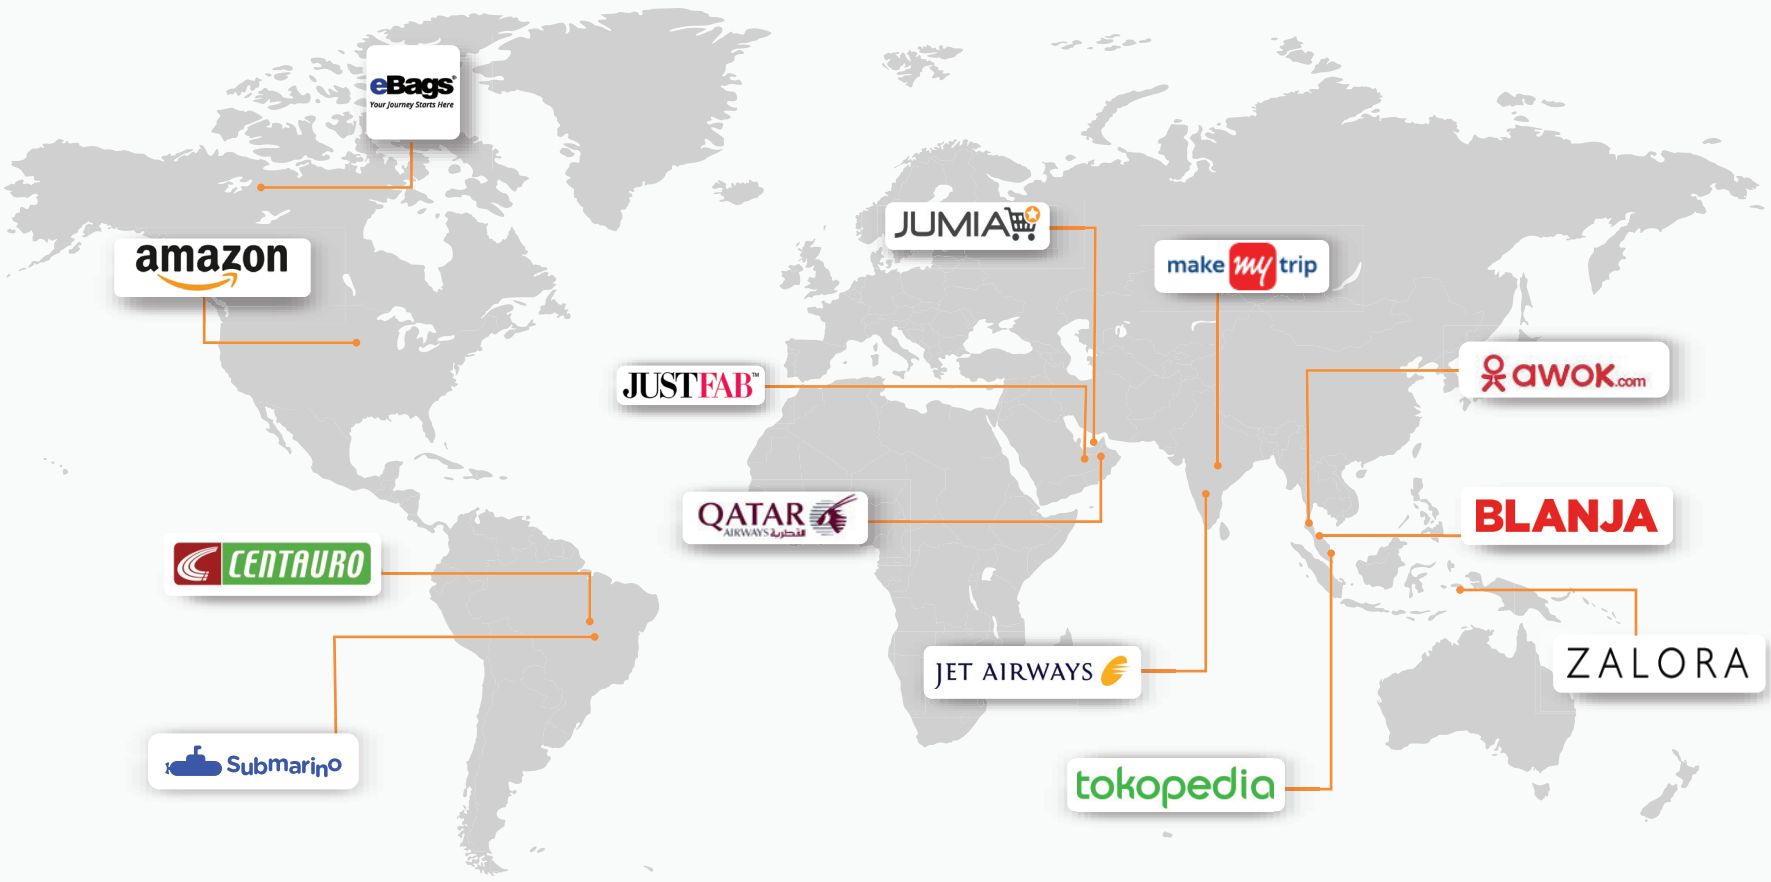
▲3X CVR — Personalised notifications Performing better than Static notifications

▲4X CTR — When notifications were sent with product details

▼$ 0.03 — Cost Per Click significantly less than other Display Retargeting Channels

▲ 21X — Increase in ROI Using Vizury's Web push Platform

Powering Marketers & Top Enterprises Globally



LUCKY VITAMIN

LuckyVitamin Corporation operates as an online e-commerce company for vitamins and nutritional supplements in the United States. It sells vitamins, nutritional supplements, herbs, body building, green living, organic, and natural products. The company was founded in 2004 and is based in Norristown, Pennsylvania.

VIZURY powered by affle

Vizury is a commerce marketing platform and its personalized retargeting stack is used by digital companies to grow marketing ROI and enhance transactions. Vizury's retargeting platform is unique as it offers an integrated proposition to target and engage with the interested consumers over Programmatic, Social and Notification channels. This platform was launched in 2007 and after achieving global scale and success, the platform and business of Vizury was acquired by Affle in 2018.

After the acquisition of the Vizury platform, it has now become an integral product as part of Affle's Consumer Platform. Affle started in 2005 and is a global technology company with a proprietary consumer intelligence platform that delivers consumer engagement, acquisitions and transactions through relevant Mobile Advertising.

Engage
Owned Media Retargeting
Web / App Push Notification

Social
Social Media Retargeting
Facebook / Instagram

Bid
Display & Video Retargeting
Programmatic Advertising On Exchanges